SETS IN ABRIDGED POOLE'S INDEX

We have just filled an order for all the Thirty-seven sets indexed in Poole abridged, to be shelved in one room for ready reference. All city and college libraries would find this plan admirable for easy reference on all popular subjects. No other firm in the world could have furnished these sets from stock. May we not submit estimates for the supply of these sets to your library?

Bulletin of Bibliography

VOL. 3 OCTOBER, 1902 No. 3

This Bulletin is published, primarily, as a means of communication between The Boston Book Company and its customers. A constant endeavor will be made, however, to include in each issue enough original matter of sufficient value to induce librarians to preserve and bind up the numbers. Each volume will be provided with a title-page and an index.

No subscription price will be put upon the journal, and numbers will not be sold. It will be sent to a selected list of libraries, customers or likely to become customers of The Boston Book Company. The circulation of the Bulletin will be increased in proportion to the interest shown in it, and in the special work of the Library Department of The Boston Book Company. Correspondence is solicited, and should be addressed,

The Boston Book Company,
83–91 Francis St., Back Bay, Boston, Mass.

EDITORIAL

WE offer some important periodicals for sale in the advertising pages of this issue. Please see that this number reaches the head of your order department, or the book committee before it is filed.

We have published Mr. Wyer's article from our July number in separate form as BULLETIN OF BIBLIOGRAPHY PAMPHLET, No 10, Price, 10 cents.

BIBLIOGRAPHICAL INDEX

THE BULLETIN OF BIBLIOGRAPHY has been selected as one among the 21 bibliographical serials of the world to be included in the A. L. A. Publishing Board's card index. The cards thus far comprise thirty-six titles, two cards to a title. A few extra sets of these have been printed and may be had for 90 cents a set of seventy-two.

Copies of vols. 1 and 2 of the BULLETIN may be had bound in buckram at $1.50 each. Separate back numbers cannot be supplied.

NOTE ON AMERICAN ARCHITECT

THE International Edition of the American Architect differs in price, color of cover and number of plates from the Regular Edition. April, May and June, 1902, were exceptions to the above as shown in the following notes in issues of April 5th and July 5th:

"Subscribers to the International Edition will receive with this week's issue the full quota of 'additional' illustrations that, under our former system of publication, would be sent them distributed between this and the next twelve issues of the American Architect; thereafter and until the first issue for July the mail will bring them each week, in place of the familiar blue-covered International copy, the straw-colored copy of the Regular Edition with its quota of text and illustrations. So on July first they will find they have received the exact amount of text, and illustrations that belong to a quarterly volume, but that it has reached them in an unusual combination."

. . . . . .

"It would take a very strong and nearly unanimous appeal from our subscribers to induce us to continue the form of publication which, during the current quarter, has been given experimentally to our International Edition. From the first issue for July, therefore, subscribers to the International Edition will again receive their copy in its familiar blue-covered weekly form."

[AMERICAN] JOURNAL OF SOCIAL SCIENCE

WE beg to call the attention of libraries everywhere to the fact that the Boston Book Company is an agent for the sale of the Journal of Social Science, the annual volumes of Proceedings of the American Social Science Association. These volumes are indexed in Poole's Index, and although many volumes are out of print, the Boston Book Company can usually supply the complete file. They also have many odd volumes for completing sets. The last issue was volume no. 39, price in cloth $1 net. It contains 216 pages with articles under the various departments of Jurisprudence, Health, Education and Art, Social Economy. Among notable articles may be cited Hon. Oscar Straus' paper on United States Naturalization and Citizenship; Prof. Miller's Education of the Negro; Dr. Harris' Higher Education in the South; Melvil Dewey's Future of the Library Movement in the United States. As a volume which should be in every library we commend this to our readers.

LAW BOOKS IN GENERAL LIBRARIES

COUNCILLOR G. I. Johnson, in an address at Birmingham (England) in 1885, thus states the rule of inclusion and exclusion adopted as to law books in the Reference Department of the Birmingham Free Library: —

"Any book which relates to the general principles of law; any book which connects law with history, they have admitted, but have excluded those purely technical books which are only the working tools of the lawyer."

The Boston Book Company carries a full line of American and English law books and would be pleased to send you a list with prices of such as are desirable for public and reference libraries.

HURDIS, John L. On North Atlantic Storms. [Read by John Matthew Jones, January 8, 1866.] Vol. 1 (pt. 4, 1867 [1866]), p. 140–146.

NOTE.—This article contains an account of the Bermuda hurricane of September 11, 1839, as well as observations upon hurricanes and revolving gales in the North Atlantic, made by the author during a residence of fourteen years in the Bermudas. See also "Fourteen years of isolation in the Bermudas" on page 146 of the same volume.

JONES, John Matthew. Contributions to the Natural History of the Bermudas. Coralliaria. [Read November 4, 1867.] Vol. 2 (pt. 2, 1869), p, 7–16.

NOTE.— Also issued separately. A copy in the Public Library at Hamilton has this note in MS.: "(Published June, 1869)." This article relates to corals and their allies. Specimens of each of the 9 species of corals and 4 species of gorgonias were exhibited at the time the paper was read, including a singularly formed Mycedium fragile. After describing the conditions favoring the growth of corals at the Bermudas and noting the fact that this is the most northerly station in the Atlantic at which the reef building polyps raise their structures, he described the following species:— Isophyllia dipsacea, Dana, p. 9–10; Mæandrina cerebriformis, Lam., p. 110–111; Siderastræa radians, Verrill, p. 11; Oculina diffusa, Lam., p. 11–12; O. varicosa, Les., p. 12; O. Valenciennesii, Edw., p. 12–13; Mycedium fragile, Dana, p. 13; Porites clavaria, Edw., p. 13–14; Millepora alcicornis, Edw., p. 14. Then are given the following list of Gorgonia:— Gorgonia flabellum, p. 15; Plexaura crassa, Lamour., p. 16; P. flexuosa, Lx., p. 16; and Pterogorgia Americana, Ehr., p. 16. Of the Gorgonia flabellum, the author says: "Small portions of this gorgon, when cleared of the external bark, are used by Bermudian cooks for skimming off impurities when boiling food, its sieve-like meshes acting as a strainer. These pieces are called 'huskers.'" Of the Plexaura crassa he says: "The well-known 'sea rods' which are made by the colored people, and sold for riding whips, are manufactured from the horny and flexible stems of this species, which are laced together and highly polished."

JONES, John Matthew. On the Vegetation of the Bermudas. [Read April 14, 1873.] Vol. 3 (pt. 3, 1873) p. 237–280.

NOTE.— This paper, one of the earliest, if not the earliest, which attempts to give a full list of the Bermudian plants, contains a list of 612 species (74 of which were undetermined) belonging to 128 genera. This includes 87 species of Endogens and 19 of Filices. The first few pages are devoted to the general features of the islands, their surface, geology, and climate. In accounting for this plant life the author ascribes its origin to various causes; as seeds cast ashore by the sea, those introduced by birds, and those brought by the early settlers. Governor Lefroy, who was much interested in the subject, introduced during 1872 and 1873 some 600 species of plants from Kew. The following species are among those to which especial consideration has been given:— Argemone mexicana, L. "Lady Thistle"; Sida carpinifolia, L. "Wire-weed"; Melia azedarach, L. "Pride of India": Citrus aurantium, L. "Sweet Orange"; Vitis vinifera, L. "Grape Vine"; Medicago lupulina, L. "Clover"; Nerium oleander, L. "Oleander"; Nicotiana tabacum, L. "Tobacco"; Lantana odorata, L.; Janipha manihot, Kth. "Cassava"; Juniperus barbadensis, L. "Cedar"; Sabal Palmetto, R.&S. "Palmetto"; Allium cepa, L. "Onion"; and Maranta arundinacea, L. "Arrow-root."

VESPUCCI, Amerigo. Account of his first voyage. Letter . . . to Pier Soderini, Gonfalonier of the Republic of Venice. No. 34. 20 pp.

NOTE.— "The island of Ity is a problem which Varnhagen has solved, but not very satisfactorily, by assuming that it referred to the Bermudas, and that the expedition sailed from Cape Cañeveral. . . . However, the difficulty is cleared if we suppose that the word greco is, as suggested by Varnhagen, a typographical error for siroco, in which case we might take it for granted that Vespucci sailed from Cape Hatteras to the Bermudas [August 6, 1497]— twenty-four years earlier than the supposed first discovery of those islands."—p. 18. in his Discovery of America (vol. 2, pp. 58–60), favors Varnhagen's theory of Vespucci's first voyage. See also FISKE'S Preface to his Discovery, pp. xiii–xv.

NOTE.— Castell's work, of which this is a reprint, was originally printed in London in 1644 in quarto. "Bermudas. There is another iſland called Bermudas, which becauſe it falleth much in the ſame longitude with Porto Rico, though many degrees diſtant to the north in regard of latitude, I muſt either inſert here or leave out. It lyeth within a degree and a half ſouth of Virginia, not ſo eaſy to be come unto, in regard it hath but one, and none of the beſt ports to land in: beſides, it is as much, if not more than any other place, infeſted with moſt tempeſtuous fearful winds called hurricanes. The soil and temperature is far inferior to any part of Virginia, and yet it is inhabited no leſs than with a thouſand Engliſh; who, no doubt, when the wiſdom of the kingdom ſhall think convenient to ſend a ſtrong navy into America, will be forward to remove and improve their plantation into a more convenient and richer soil."—p. 748.

NOTE.— The illustrations are reproductions from photographs of living wild birds, a branch of photography in which the author is especially proficient. "The most striking bird of the Bermudas is the Yellow-billed Tropic-bird (Phaeton americanus); or 'Long Tail' of the natives." The two new subspecies are the Cardinalis cardinalis somersii, p. 84, with illustration; and the Sialia sialis bermudensis, p. 84. "The following species, observed during March, April, and May, 1901, have never, to my knowledge, been recorded from Bermuda": Phaeton æthereus: Red-billed Tropic-bird; Larus glaucus: Glaucous gull; Melanerpes carolinus: Red-bellied Woodpecker; Columbigallina passerina bahamensis: Bahama Ground Dove; Blue Jay; Red-shouldered Hawk; Thrasher; Orchard Oriole (skins of these last four species were found in the Public Library at Hamilton); Passer montanus: European Tree Sparrow; Carduelis carduelis: European Goldfinch; Spinus tristis: American Goldfinch; Spizella monticola: Tree Sparrow; Mimus polyglottos: Mocking Bird; Sitta carolinensis: White-breasted Nuthatch: Vireo, sp.?; Dendroica pennsylvanica: Chestnut-sided Warbler; D. striata: Black-poll Warbler; D. blackburniæ: Blackburnian Warbler; and the Wheatear, Saxicola œnanthe, introduced within the last three years near St. Georges, and apparently doing well.

SMALL, H. Beaumont. In the Bermudas. Vol. 12 (no. 2, April, 1898), p. 35–37.

NOTE.— This short article is in the form of a letter to the members of the O. F. N. Club. The writer mentions the advantages of Bermuda as a station for the study of the migration of birds and their abundance as a result of a law protecting them. "To the botanist," he says, "the Islands are a veritable garden of Eden. . . . Everywhere may be seen the Oleander in every shade of color, from white to crimson, while Cacti, Aloes, Bamboo, Night-blooming Cereus, the Passion-flower and Honeysuckle find a foothold in the crumbling coral rocks or on the old stone walls. . . . I have compiled a work entitled "In the Bermudas" dealing with all the fauna and flora of the islands, and containing a large amount of interesting history which will give details of use to naturalists."

SMALL, H. Beaumont. Vegetation in the Bermudas. Part I. Trees. Vol. 12 (no. 5, August, 1898), p. 101–104.

NOTE.— Trees, owing to the moisture of the climate of Bermuda, attain a luxuriance unknown in more northern climes. The following trees are described:— the Juniper (Juniperus Bermudiensis), known in the islands only as the Cedar; Fiddlewood (Citharoxylum Quadrangulare); Poinciana (P. Regia); Tamarind (Tamarindus Indicus); Galba (Calophyllum Calaba); White Cedars (Tecoma Pentaphylla); Loquat (Eriobotrya Japonica); Seaside Grape (Coccoloba Uvifera); Alligator or Avocado Pear (Persea Gratissima); Pride of India (Melia Azedarach); Mangrove (Rhizopora Mangle); Mulberry (Morus Rubra); the Ailanthus; Banyan; Mahogany; and Calabash (the last four imported); Royal Palms (Oreodoxa Oleracea); Palmetto (Sabal Umbraculifera); Rubber Tree (Ficus Elastica); Bamboo (Bambusa Arundinacea); Tamarisk (T. Gallica); and False Mangrove (Avicennia Nitida). "With the exception of two or three species, there are no trees that may be called deciduous on the islands."

SMALL, H. Beaumont. Vegetation of the Bermudas. Part II. Flowering Shrubs. Vol. 12 (no. 6, September, 1898), p. 109–114.

NOTE.— Only the most striking shrubs are here alluded to. They are Match-me-if-you-can (Poinsietta pulcherrima); Hibiscus (H. mutabilis); Oleander (Nerium Oleander; a shrub easily mistaken for the Oleander, but with green flowers (Dodonæa Burmanniana); Myrtle (Myrtus communis); Surinam Cherry (Eugenia Ugni); Laurestinus (Viburnum Tinus); Orange (Citrus); Lemon (Citrus Limonum); Lime (Punica granatum); Papaw (Carica Papaya); Dog-bush (Baccharis heterophylla); Datura (D. Metel); Pigeon Berry (Duranta Plumieri); Sage Bush (Lantana crocea); a kindred bush (Lantana Odorata); Snuff Plant (Buddleja Americana); Wild Acacia (Lucœna glauca); a sea-side shrub, without a popular name (Scævola Plumieri); Bay Berry (Myrica cerifera); Elder (Sambucus niger); Seaside Lavender (Suriana maritima); Castor Oil Plant (Ricinus communis); Yucca or Spanish Bayonet (Y. aloifolia); Aloe (A. vulgaris); Century Plant (Agava americana); Night-blooming Cereus (Cactus grandiflorus); and Prickly Pear (Opuntia vulgaris).

SMALL, H. Beaumont. Vegetation in the Bermudas. Part III. Plants and Flowers. Vol. 12 (nos. 7 and 8, October and November, 1898), p. 153–157.

NOTE.— "If after the fall of man any truant flower of Eden escaped its bounds their seeds must have found a kindly soil in Bermuda. . . . Bermuda is a botanist's paradise. . . . The Passion-flower, Narcissus, Geranium, Heliotrope, Verbena, Violet, Wistaria, and a Creeper known as Bourgainvillea, one of the handsomest adjuncts to a wall or veranda that the world produces, are all remarkable for their luxuriance. "The following species are described: Passion-flower, 2 species (Passiflora cærulea) and (P. minima); Narcissus, 2 species (N. Tazetta) and (N. jonquilla); Honeysuckle, 2 species (Caprifolium sempervirens) and (Lonicera Japonica); Morning Glory (Convolvulus major); Easter Lily (Lilium Harrisii); and a dwarf species (L. longiflorum); Blue Lily (Agapanthus umbellatus); Egyptian Lily or Arum (Calla Ethiopica); Cane Shot (Canna coccinea); a lily species, known as Elephant's Ears (Caladium); a plant miscalled Heath (Russelia juncea); Poppy (Papaver dubium) and (P. somniferum); Stock (Matthiola incana); Stinging Thistle (Argemone Mexicana); Evening Primrose, 4 species (Œnothera longiflora), (Œ. sinuata), (Œ. rosea), and (Œ. humifusa); Four o'clock plant (Mirabilis Jalapa); Golden Rod (Solidago sempervirens); Salvias, 4 species (Salvia splendens, (S. purpurea), (S. coccinea), and (S. serotina); Barbadoes Fence (Poinciana pulcherrima); Red Justica (J. lurida sanguinea) and (J. alba); Life Plant (Bryophyllum calycinum); Dwarf Banana (Musa Cavendishii); Common Banana (M. sapientum); Red Banana (M. rosacea); Fig Banana (M. spicatum); Plantain (M. paridisiaca); Cassava (Jatropha Manihot); Arrowroot (Maranta arundinacea); and a plant supposed by the writer to be a Sanseveria. "Owing to the extreme moistere in the air, vegetation is always luxuriant, growth being sustained by the heavy dews and the great evaporation at night. These conditions approach the description of Eden, where 'a mist went up from the garden and watered the face of the earth.'"

SMALL, H. Beaumont. Bermuda: Life beneath the Waters. Vol. 12 (no. 10, January, 1899), p. 191–194.

NOTE.— This is an extract from the author's "In the Bermudas." The author names several kinds of fish conspicuous for their beauty, and hopes that before long a biological station may be established at Bermuda. He records that he saw a specimen of an Octopus, washed up by a storm, whose tentacles were nearly three feet in length, and its hideous glaring eye and formidable beak made it a most repulsive object.

SMALL, H. Beaumont. The Bermuda or Easter Lily. Vol. 13 (no. 3, June, 1899), p. 71–72.

NOTE.— This article gives an account of the lily culture and of the injury caused by the lily disease. It closes with the curious legend of its origin in China as the "Bak-hap," its subsequent development in Japan, and its final introduction into the Bermudas.

Brown, H. R. F. Venice; an historical sketch of the republic. 1893.
A satisfactory history of Venice, tracing the progress of human destiny in the life of the whole people and giving a clear account of the organization of the government and extension of her power.

Canale, Martin da. Cronaca dei Veneziani 1102–1303 nell'antico francese colla versione ital. del conte G. Galvani. (In Archivo stor. ital. v. 8. 1845.)

Clement, Mrs. C. E. (Mrs. Walters). Queen of the Adriatic; or, Venice mediæval and modern. 1893.
Sketches of the history of Venice and its most celebrated localities and buildings written with a lightness of touch and sense of proportion often sadly missing from books made for a purpose.

Daru, P. A. N. B. Histoire de Venise. 2 v. 1838.
"Entertaining but . . . untrustworthy." Adams.

Finlay, George. Venetian domination in Greece 1684–1718. (See his History of Greece under Othoman and Venetian domination. 1856. p. 197.)

Flagg, Edmund. Venice, the city of the sea. 2 v. 1853.
The author, a U. S. consul at Venice, has written the history from the invasion by Napoleon 1797 to the capitulation to Radetsky in 1849.

Freeman, E. A. Sketches from the subject and neighbor lands of Venice. 1881.
Descriptions of places associated with the history of Venice.

Gibbon, Edward. Decline and fall of the Roman Empire, 1853–55. v. 6. p. 539–73.
Celebrated as a brilliant yet exact narrative of the conquest of Constantinople by the Venetians and French.

Hazlitt, W. C. History of the Venetian republic; rise, greatness, civilization. 4 v. 1860.
"A full, and in the main, a satisfactory history of Venice from the origin of the city to the middle of the fifteenth century. It is founded on a careful study of authorities and consequently it shows that many of the popular notions concerning Venetian history are grossly erroneous. The worthlessness of Daru's famous History is made very obvious. The third and fourth volumes 1309–1457 will be found by most students of especial interest and value. The author's style is clear and often picturesque." Adams.

Hazlitt, W. C. Story of Marino Faliero. (See his History of the Venetian republic. 1860. v. 3. p. 144–62.)

Hazlitt, W. C. Venetian republic; its rise, its growth and its fall, 421–1797. 1900. 2 v.
A revision of the edition of 1860, the fruit of a lifetime. The author calls it "a history, a monument and a lesson: a monument to what Venice accomplished: a lesson to show how the errors of state are punished, and how power and wealth may come and go." Preface.

Larned, J. N. Venice. (See his History for ready reference, 1894–95. v. 5. p. 3602–15.)
A sketch of Venice made up of extracts from standard histories with the exact reference given for authorities quoted.

Molmenti, P. G. La vie privée à Venise . . . jusqu'à la chute de la republique. 1802.

Ranke, F. L. von. Zur venetianer geschichte. 1878.
"Venetian archives are exceedingly rich and no historian has explored them so thoroughly as Ranke. Whatever he has found, of interesting import, he has gathered into this volume." Adams.

Romanin, S. Storia documentata di Venezia. 10 v. 1853–61.

Ruskin, John. St. Mark's rest, the history of Venice . . . 1890.

Saxon, Mrs. E. L. anon. City in the sea, story of the deeds of the old Venetians from the chronicles. 1883.
The most interesting periods of Venetian history. Simple but not juvenile in style.

Smedley, Edward, anon. Sketches from Venetian history. 2 v. 1832.
A picturesque narrative of interesting episodes in the history of Venice.

Smedley, Edward, anon. War of Chiozza. (See his Sketches from Venetian history. 1832. v. 1. p. 220–61.)

Wiel, Alethea. Venice. 1894. (Story of the nations ser.)
"The book is inevitably a mere sketch, . . . but . . . written with so just a sense of proportion, so sure an eye for the picturesque and romantic, and with such liveliness of style, that it leaves a clearer impression than most ponderous histories."

Yriarte, C. E. Venice, its history, art, industries and modern life; tr. from the French by F. J. Sitwell. 1880.

MANNERS AND CUSTOMS.

Brown, H. R. F. Life on the lagoons. 1884.
The chapters are little essays on Venetian subjects, short, bright, picturesque and full of information. The author seeks to show Venice from the point of view of the boat.

Coryate, Thomas. Coryate's crudities, reprinted from the edition of 1611. . . 3 v. 1776.
Contains observations on Venice. Quaint and lively descriptions of the city in the days of her magnificence.

Evelyn, John. Venice. (See his Diary and correspondence. 1879. p. 196–220.)
An entertaining description of social life in 1645.

Goldoni, Carlo. Memoirs, written by himself, tr. by John Black, with an essay by W. D. Howells. 1877.
Goldoni was born in Venice in 1707 and his memoirs are interesting and vivacious sidelights on the life and manners of the Venetians.

Howells, W. D. Venetian life. 2 v. 1892.
The political life differs somewhat from that of the present, as the book was written some 20 years ago, but it gives a true and vivid picture of the Venetians.

Lent, W. B. Bride of the sea. (See his Gypsying beyond the sea. 1893. v. 2. p. 165–80.)
The author observes many things that escape the eyes of the conventional traveller.

Malincontri, Filippo. Filippo Malincontri or Student life in Venetia. 2 v. 1861.

Moore, John. Venice. (See his View of society and manners in Italy. 1820. v. 2. p. 1–108.)
A vivacious account of the administration of the government in Venice.

Rose, W. S. Letters from the north of Italy addressed to Henry Hallam. 2 v. 1819.
These consist chiefly of letters from Venice descriptive of the language, literature, political and social institutions of the republic. It contains much curious information and is written in a polished, agreeable style.

Sismondi, J. C. L. S. de. Aristocracy of Venice. (See his History of Italian republics. 1832. p. 108–11.)

To Libraries which already have the principal sets of periodicals indexed by Poole, we suggest that many of the legal or semi-legal sets covered by contain articles on topics of history, biography, politics, sociology, jurisprudence, etc., which render them valuable in a general library.

Information as to these sets will be furnished, if desired, by
